

August Newsletter

These are strange but also beautiful times. I say that because, if we allow it, the Universe has our backs – we will all be fine.

I also mention this because of events that occurred with me and my tour group in Spain last week. As many of you will know, I arranged a tour party to go to some very special sites in South East Spain and I was away from the 13th to the 23rd July. What happened & what we achieved was ground breaking in every sense energetically. I won't be able to go into it all in this newsletter unfortunately as there is just too much to say. What I will say though is that we had two group meditation sessions on the 1st Order node there & we learnt loads and pulled through huge amounts of energy. This was the first time ever, we had a large group working at this node and it responded incredibly well for us all.

Aside from working on the energies there, we visited several sites and even repaired two important nodes. In a nutshell, a group had to go over there and do these things and, because of that, we got a very special kind of assistance.

I set up the tour dates over 6 months ago and did not change them. My wife and I flew out early to prepare for the group to arrive and we were on one of the first flights to Spain after the air bridge had been set up to allow people from Britain to fly over there and back without having to self-quarantine. So already we all felt very fortunate to even be able to get over the Spain.

What happened at the end of the tour was even more fortuitous for us. We were based at a hotel (a converted monastery) because one of the type 5 lines runs through it. The chance to sleep on these strong energies for 9 nights was incredibly special. This was in a place called Totana in Murcia.

On the Thursday 23rd Totana announced that over 40 people had tested positive for Coronavirus and that they were going into lockdown on the 24th. This would mean that no one could leave Totana and no one could enter. Even some of the locations we went to, like the Bronze Age city of La Bas Tida, were now closed to everyone.

We did not get told this information on the 23rd though, only that the region had to return to a phase one situation in regards to Covid – and no one seemed to know then what that meant. It was only back in the UK we found out what had really happened. Apparently some Bolivians had brought the virus with them down from Madrid and gave it to others in a nightclub they went to.

Our flights back were early on the 24th so we set off in the minibus at 7.00am and as we headed out of Totana at the first round about on the ring road, the police were beginning to set up a road block.

We all remember looking at them wondering then what they were doing. They were also looking at us rather strangely too as though they were not sure what to do with us. Looking back now, if we had left the hotel just 15 minutes later, I doubt we would have been allowed to drive out of the town. We were truly being looked after.

Our flights back were fine and we landed in the UK only just having to fill in some location forms. Again here we were fortunate because the next day the UK brought back in the 14 day self-quarantine rules. It was only because these were not in place at the start of the tour that allowed some of the tour party to be able to go.

So looking back at the wonderful experiences we all had and the work that had to be done. It was as though the Universe had our backs. The small window of opportunity opened up for us for just long enough to go out, get the job done, and to get back out again.

Earth Energy news

In one of the Gnostic gospels we learn that the Snake in the garden of Eden was not in fact Satan at all. It was not even portrayed as evil, but instead it was considered a teacher – an instructor. Serpents we now know are symbolic for Earth Energy lines all around the World and these indeed are our teachers.

In the many years, I have been studying these lines, I have never taken a course from anyone in how to dowse. I started with dowsing for water and was taught that by an Italian Geologist in Africa who I worked with underground in the mines. We dowsed, we drilled, we found water. It taught me the importance of feedback in dowsing.

When I returned to the UK, I came across the book The Sun and the Serpent by Paul Broadhurst and Hamish Miller. Living near to Crediton, I first tried my hand at dowsing the Michael and Mary line at the Holy cross church there. It took me an hour going round and round the church until I had picked up what Hamish had dowsed.

Ever since then, I have explored these lines and learnt as I went. The more I did this, the more I began to realise that my learning was gradual, step by step and at a pace I could cope with. There was nothing too challenging early on.

Only looking back at it all now can I see that the Energy lines really were teaching me. I was being gently directed to new areas of learning at exactly the right time and this still continues today.

There were two rules though that I have come to learn over the years and these two rules were very important. Firstly, if I kept what I learnt to myself, my own learning was slow down and I would find out less and less. The more I shared with someone however, the more new information kept coming in. Secondly, I needed to be mindful of something I call the Expert / Idiot strategy.

What some of you may not know is that aside from a career in Geology, I have also had a 10 year career in training and coaching with a multinational corporation. I have now combined the skills I learnt there with the knowledge I have learnt from Earth Energies and I now run competency based dowsing training courses. If you are interested in learning to dowse, please sign up for my courses on my website <https://roryduff.com/dowsing-courses/> They have just been started up again after the lockdown.

The Expert/ Idiot strategy applies to the beginners in a subject and to those with many years of experience in the same subject.

Unfortunately after years of experience in something people tend to fall into the trap of thinking they are an expert. Doing this rapidly closes the mind to new information as some experts being to think and act as though they know it all. This is when they really need to adopt the strategy of an idiot and instead they should really keep a far more open mind to things. It is easy to learn when you know nothing about a subject as everything is new. Beginners often make the mistake of starting with an open mind. That too is a mistake. Unfortunately, beginners really need to learn the right things first. There are basic ground rules to each subject that need to be in place in order for future information to be placed upon. This way a sound structural knowledge of a subject can be built. It is therefore important to have a different hat on as a beginner and to focus only on what is absolutely necessary to learn first. This strategy requires a person to narrow their minds to the task at hand and the one they are given.

As was mentioned the opposite is true for the person with years of experience. They need a much more open mind and they have to look everywhere in order to find a grain of truth that is relevant to their own subject. This though requires great decision making skills as large amounts of information needs to be looked at in order to learn more. Much of that information they will already know, much will be rubbish, much will have to come from other similar decisions so that might require new learning and all this takes time and good decisions on what to keep and what to ignore.

So the more we know, the more we realise we do not know and the more we need an open mind, and not the closed mindedness of some experts, in order to find that little bit extra we need to learn about our subjects.

With this in mind, I am constantly trying to open my mind up to find out new things about Earth Energy lines. There are many ways to do this but one of them is going back to just making observations without trying to jump to early conclusions.

Having now said all that, I would like to share with you a recent set of observations that I have now found twice in two different places within the space of a couple of weeks, having not come across them before.

It involves the type 5 Emperor Dragon lines and smaller nodes. These lines are now so wide (170+ meters paces) that other smaller lines have been found to form smaller nodes within them. Now you might think this is quite normal but in both these cases, the centres of the type 5 lines do not run through the smaller nodes.

When asking if the type 5 lines want to be moved and to cross over at the centre of the smaller node, the answer is that they do not need to do that.

So what is going on here? Why do these Emperors not wish to node with the smaller lines. In these two cases I came across the smaller nodes are made up of two pairs of Type 2 lines and two pairs of Type 1 lines. The answer is that I am not fully sure yet. Smaller nodes like this we know lead to a very different feeling when you meditate on them. We also know that large lines can take on protective roles to special sites. That a larger type 5 line does not wish to node with the smaller node maybe because it requires a freedom of movement itself – but why should that be?

You can perhaps begin to see now why this subject becomes so interesting. It grows ones curiosity. It makes you ask more questions and this can motivate you to keep on searching and looking for answers – just like great teachers do.

All we can do is to be patient and wait for the answers to come at the right time. There is perhaps one thing we can try though and that is to follow ones vocational path and to do that, we need to follow the trail of synchronicity. If you would like to learn more about synchronicity, I have some modules coming out soon on this.

Science

I thought it might be a good idea to provide you with three reasons the Big Bang theory of creation has to be wrong. Just in case you get into an argument with a scientist or even a physicist, you could try asking them to answer all three. If they cannot then direct them to Ron Pearson's website for solutions with the big breed theory and a full theory of quantum gravity (www.pearsonianspace.com).

But why is this important? Well his theories also explain intelligence behind the Universe and it shows how all psychic phenomena are entirely natural – including survival after death and all these subjects need to be taken more seriously by scientists. His theory does not gives us answers to everything – that would be impossible – but it does provide a sound framework upon which we can begin to comprehend and build upon.

Firstly, with an initial big explosion that instantly created all matter in the Universe, we can trace it back to a time of origin based on what we find in the Universe. This makes the maximum possible age of the Universe to be 13.7 billion years old. Astronomers though have found large scale structures, like supermassive quasars and galaxies, that are so old they must have begun to have been formed at a much older time – millions of years before the maximum permissible age with a big bang.

Secondly, there is the problem of something called 'The problem of the Graceful exit'. Part of the big bang theory requires that immediately after the initial explosion, whatever caused it, had to be shut off. You see there was nothing outside of the explosion to slow it down and stop it and if it was not shut off, then the stars & the galaxies and the planets, and all the matter that had just been instantly made, could not have come together and formed. To shut something off this big would need a huge supply of energy and physicists cannot think where this energy could have come from. In other words they are struggling to explain themselves so their favoured theory has really not been fully thought properly.

Thirdly, a physicist called Alan Guth, who came up with the mathematics that supposedly supports this terrible theory, surmised that the expansion, or inflation, following the big bang was down to something he called 'the intrinsic negative pressure of the vacuum'.

In other words, whatever was in space before the big bang came along had some kind of suction power. This however cannot be produced by his mathematics because it contained a fatal flaw that was deliberately overlooked by other physicists. This flaw was pointed out to them by Ron Pearson and they hastily complicated the mathematics to try and hide it. What is curious is that it is simple for us to understand with really basic maths.

You see what Guth wanted to do, was to end up with negative pressure in order to show why and how the inflation model could be driven outwards into the nothingness. If he could persuade us there was an 'intrinsic' vacuum, then we might believe it could drive and sustain this initial explosion and expansion.

So what he did was to use a simple mathematical trick we were all taught at school.

If you have three oranges plus two oranges it equals 5 oranges.

$$3+2 = 5$$

If you now take two oranges away from each side you get

$$(3 + 2) - 2 = 5 - 2 \quad \text{which makes} \quad 3 = 3$$

The trick we are taught at school is that we can switch sides with the oranges. In other words we can take two oranges from one side and add them to the other side in order to solve the equation. You do this by changing the positive or negative sign before the number. In the case of the oranges this becomes

$$3 \text{ oranges} = 5 \text{ oranges} \text{ minus } 2 \text{ oranges} \quad 3=5-2 \quad \text{which leads to } 3 = 3$$

The two was positive on the left hand side of the equation but when it is moved to the other side, using the mathematical trick, the 2 becomes negative. This is all very well when working purely with numbers but not so helpful when calculating & solving real World problems.

This trick though works very well with oranges just as it should with all objects - including bicycle pumps.

You see you can place your finger over the end of a bicycle pump and then pull back the handle. When you do that, and then release the handle, the suction inside the tube pulls the handle back down again because of the negative vacuum pressure inside the tube due to you pulling out the handle (plunger).

The opposite is true if you start with the handle (plunger) extended out and put your finger over the other end of the tube. This time you push the handle you find that positive pressure builds up inside the tube. When you then let go of the handle (plunger), the positive pressure inside the tube pushes the handle (plunger) back out again

Now if you have 3 bicycle pumps with positive pressure inside the tube and add them to two bicycle pumps with positive pressure in them it equals 5 bicycle pumps with positive pressure. Taking two away from each side now leaves you with just three positive pressure pumps either side. Everything here is fine so far.

If however you use the mathematical trick of changing the signs you should still get the same result.

You can start with 3 bicycle pumps with positive pressure and add 2 bicycle pumps with positive pressure and this will make 5 bicycle pumps with positive pressure. If you take two bicycle pumps from the left hand side of the equation and transfer them to the right side you can still do the mathematical trick by changing the sign.

3 bicycle pumps with positive pressure now equals 5 bicycle pumps with positive pressure minus 2 bicycle pumps with positive pressure. This leads to $3 = 3$ when it comes to a statement about positive pressure bicycle pumps. All is good with this so far.

Unfortunately, what Guth decided to do though was to not just change the mathematical sign over to a minus on the other side of the equation. He also decided to change the pressure inside of the bicycle pump. This is totally wrong as either positive pressure or negative pressure would have to stay the same either side of the equation. By do this he changed a positive pressure into a negative pressure. This is totally against all laws of nature.

Of course he was not using bicycle pumps in his big bang equations but the same point holds true.

In other words he changed the positive pressure of the space outside of the big bang into negative pressure just by moving it to the other side of the equation.

This, as you can see now, is completely wrong to do.

It shows an absolute failure to use basic conceptual logic and to just mathematical trickery.

There is no way something with positive pressure in real life suddenly changes to negative pressure.

Of course the reason he did this though was because of his obvious desire to somehow end up with negative pressure that would then allow him to suddenly explain how the vacuum in space could have a negative pressure.

The reason I used the analogy of bicycle pumps is that it is far easier to see. A positive pressure inside the tube does not magically change to negative pressure the other side of the equation.

This exactly shows the problems theoretical physicists get into in their World of Mathematics and this is also how we end up with absurdities of multiples of universes and multiples of dimensions.

Be careful how you point this out to them though. They will not like you at all for telling them and their huge ego's will defend their positions to the bitter end rather than admit a simple mistake like this.

There are actually more than these three reasons why the big bang should have been dismissed as theory many years ago. This however shows another problem in science today.

Science always used to progress by establishing theories in the correct way and then trying to disprove them. Today, this practice has stopped in many disciplines and what has replaced it is the disastrous consensus of opinion.

No one should want or even ask a scientist for an opinion. Indeed no scientist should actually give an opinion.

One final point here is that Space is now known to not be empty, nor a vacuum. If you follow the electric universe theory there are huge amounts of plasma and cosmic radiation passing through space.

Courses, Seminars, Workshops news

I have not been able to run courses and seminars or workshops this last month, however, as I mentioned earlier, I was able to take a group to Spain to experience some wonderfully energetic sites so I would like to mention one or two highlights of this trip.

Firstly, I want to say thanks to the fantastic group of people who joined me. I have mentioned in the past the importance of finding the right combination of people well, as spirit would have it, we found just the right balance in this group.

So from left to right – thank you Peter, David, Saira, Sigrid, Bea and Stephanie all seen here in front of an amazing Menhir just outside town of Lorca in the mountains. What we discovered there was just one of the many new things we came across during the trip.

I am not going to mention what happened in the meditations as investigations and research are still ongoing but several steps forward were made in working out just how groups should function and work together at nodes.

It definitely led to some kind of magic though as opportunities just seemed to present themselves to us. For example we went to the town of Caravaca de la Cruz where the Santuario and Templar chapel can be found. This is where the Apparition window can be seen that I write about in my book Grail Found and which is covered in the documentary Holy Grail Found.

Normally, the place is filled with tourists, but on the morning we went, it was empty and we had the place and the tour guide to ourselves. Our first bit of magic began when the guide herself was fully supportive of what we were doing as we meditated in circle inside the original Templar chapel.

This led her to offer us a private tour of the rooms above the chapel – places where the public are rarely shown and I for one had never been.

At the very top of what is a very high 13th century Templar tower there was another chapel !

At this point you need to know that these small rooms are about 4 meters by 4 meters in size and that the centre of the 4th order node here is found in every room above one another. Also, when nodes are not in harmony, there is a cylinder of energy rising up into the air and down into the ground.

There are four levels here for the node. The base, and ground level, is where the Altar of the main church can be found. Above that there is the chapel with the Apparition window. Above that there is another room where religious gowns are kept and the fourth room above that is this chapel at the top.

I know of no other place in the World (yet) where one can meditate around a node at four different heights. When we came together in a circle in the top chapel, where our lovely guide called Annabel joined us, there was definitely a different feeling to when we meditated lower down. It was another first for all of us.

But what we had not expected when we finally reached the top chapel was what we saw on the ceiling.

All around the walls, you could easily see that you were in a Roman Catholic church, however when you look up, you are confronted by what you can see in this image. The background is blue sky and clouds and in the middle there are two circles – an outer purple/brown coloured one and an inner yellow one.

Just stop and think what this is supposed to symbolise. Remember now to that this place is one of the top 5 holiest sites in the Christian World – according to the Pope and we know he has visited this place and seen this chapel. Remember too that this is a place known for its miracles.

I am not going to say what I think this symbolises as you will probably already have guessed. But just think about how much the Roman Catholic church already knows about these things and chooses not to speak about.

If circumstances allow, I am running another trip to these sites at the end of November. If you would like to book up a place, or even see what we do, have a look at this page on my website <https://roryduff.com/spain-trip/>

On another note, I am starting up my dowsing courses in August and have added more in September. Places are being booked up reasonably quickly but all courses so far have spaces.

Anyone who has done my level 1 course can progress to doing the level 2 course and I have one place left on the 30th August for that level 2 course. So if you are interested, please read more about it on this website and sign up quickly if it is of interest. It is one where you will be beginning to feel the differences in the lines and also one where there is a mapping test at the end. All my courses are competency based so you will need to show proficiency in all competences in order to pass.

Social Media news

If you read my recent posts on Instagram and Facebook, you will know I have touched on the subjects of Giants again and the proof that they exist and have walked on this Earth quite recently.

My last post about the Solomon islands brings them up again as they have been seen here too very frequently.

The evidence of their existence really forces us to look at things differently. Without doubt our past is being deliberately covered up from us and we have to ask why. What are the powers that would be really keeping from us & why?

The answer to this appears to be just as fantastic as the proof Giants exist. Just imagine now being as shocked as you could possibly be about the real truth if you were told about it - shock that freezes you and holds you motionless.

No just imagine again being threatened with all sorts of horrible things happening to you and your family right in front of your very eyes.

Now imagine switching from being motionless with shock and filled with fear and anger into a state of grace and love and gratitude to all those around you.

No, this is not easy to do but this is what you must learn to do and do well in the next three years.

We need to get used to the possibility of seeing strange things and being told or shown things that are supposed to anger and scare us in advance of these things actually happening. In other words we must practice and prepare for what is coming. This is one of the reasons, I write my posts so nothing will be new to you when our energetic environment changes even more.

Our minds are being reactivated by the increasing cosmic energies and we will begin to see, feel and hear things we are not used to as our senses increase. Our minds may well start moving from dream state to an awake state and back again without notice and we will need to learn to control that ability in order to stop ourselves thinking we are going mad, or even eventually becoming mad.

In other words nothing should surprise us going forward. We may well start seeing Giants and Dwarves in future. We may even see Elementals. You will not be going mad, but others may well want to make you think you are. Just talk to these 'Beings' as you would others and if your heart is in the right place you will be fine.

You see the veil between the Worlds is coming down – just as the prophecies have been telling us.

Books

The book I am currently reading is the Evolution of Consciousness by Rudolf Steiner. I bought in the 1980's and the first time I read it, I have to say it really did not sink in as much as it should have. I somehow sensed its significance though and it has been in my main collection ever since.

Intuition leapt at me recently though as I noticed it again. For more on that though read post 299 on my social media posts.

What I would like to add here though is that, although the title is about the Evolution of consciousness, the first few chapters are filled with some incredible statements about how to meditate and what to look out for in a step by step approach to connecting with the World of spirit. I have to say, I had forgotten about this and had not expected it when I began to read the book again.

It is so packed with them that my reading speed has really had to slow down to snail pace.

The following is an example:-

"To develop the inner forces of the soul leading to meditation, we must feel the way from passive thinking to thinking that is inwardly active and creative and new. If done repeatedly over time a moment will come which is inwardly full of energy and force."

and

"We go from imaginative knowledge to Inspired knowledge and then the Spiritual World can present itself to our soul."

There are so many more gems in this book for anyone wishing to learn more about Steiner and his own experiences. I won't recommend it to you though, but do take this as a first event sign. If you come across something unconnected to this newsletter in the next few days, something that connects you to Steiner or the evolution of consciousness, then I would suggest you explore that more and possibly go and find a copy of the book to read.

Other

If you have felt that the last week in July has been more tiring than normal and perhaps you have felt like sleeping in the middle of the day, I am not at all surprised. The latest increase in cosmic energy has hit us as another bow shock wave in advance of the large wave that approaches. Focusing deeply on the work you are doing has also not been so easy. This will not last long though and should clear in a couple of days. Do expect more of them though and more often and a building intensity. This will not mean it gets worse for us though as each time we are being prepared for the next wave. Our minds and bodies are just being programmed with these evolutionary waves.
